

FS Says Scribe Made Boo Boo, But We Say No

by The Scribe Editors

The uproar caused by a story, printed in the Scribe last week, concerning the "rejection by the Faculty Senate" of a proposal that would free graduating seniors from final exams is still rebounding around our news room. Under all the din and dun, the Scribe staff is now convinced that it is "semantics" and not music that makes the world go 'round.

The Faculty Senate has challenged the story as "erroneous and misleading" on the grounds that the "rejection" was not the action of the Senate per se, but of the Scholastics Standard Committee, a standing committee within the Senate organization. They further stated that the proposal was not "rejected" by the SSC but rather was voted "inadequate as written."

Here is a rundown on the issue that has tempers soaring on campus.

Last April the Student Council wrote the first student proposal ever presented to the Faculty Senate by a student group.

It asked for legislation that would free graduating seniors with a B average in a course and an over-all 2.5 QPR from taking the final.

The senate then referred the proposal to the SSC for a report in May. The SSC called a meeting in May but the council asked for a postponement.

The council representatives finally got together with the SSC this month and according to Dr. Charles Petitjean, member of the committee, were told that the proposal was "inadequate . . . mainly because it is too vague and no worthwhile reasons were presented."

The Scribe got a lead on the story through Student Council and sent a reporter to interview Emerson Chamberlain, chairman of the Faculty Senate. Chamberlain told the reporter that he did not care to make a statement at that time. The time was Wednesday, the day before we broke the story.

The paper tried unsuccessfully to get Dr. Petitjean by phone the day before approaching Mr. Chamberlain, but did speak, however, to Francis X. DiLeo, of the College of Business Administration faculty, who said that he knew nothing about the SSC action, but that college had gone on that week as favoring the proposal in essence.

A check with the council revealed that the SSC had offered to help the students "rewrite" the proposal in an attempt to make it more presentable to the Senate.

The Scribe sat down to write the story. It had checked with the senate and no information was given. It attempted to check Dr. Petitjean to no avail. When the Scribe wrote the story it used only the "facts" that were available.

Here is where the semantical merry-go-round begins. The Scribe considers a proposal that has been dubbed "inadequate" as a rejection. It backs this up with the SSC's own statements that it was going to help write a new one. Therefore, if the "old" proposal was inadequate and a new one was in the offering, it was fairly evident that the "first" proposal was rejected.

As for the Scribe's saying the Faculty Senate had "rejected the first proposal" instead of pinning it to the SSC directly, it was an honest abstraction. The SSC is not normally known to our readers. Throughout the country, when the Naval Department of Coastal Weeds makes a statement it is considered justifiable to say "the Navy Department" in a news story.

Much of the hassle caused by the story stemmed from an idea that people only read headlines.

Certainly if the headline, and the headline only, is all that was read, the reader might get the wrong impression. But then reading habits are hard to correct. What is read then depends on reader interest. In any case the story clearly stated that the proposal was not tossed out, but was undergoing some changes.

Furthermore, "alternate plan" committee was put in quotes to signify that it was not an official organ of the Faculty Senate.

The Scribe does not consider the story erroneous or misleading. However, certain points would have been cleared up had the chairman talked with our reporter and given the committee's point of view.

Amid all the confusion, one faculty member leaned back and smiled this week saying "you know this story has caused a hell of a lot of trouble, but I like it. It's about time we had some excitement around here."

Of Rights and Reasons

The emotion mustered up over the Scribe story on "no finals for Seniors with a B average" doesn't seem to warrant the situation. If the students were asking for absolution for "all" seniors no matter what their grade, or better still were trying to do away with finals for every blessed student enrolled at the University, then we could see the need for concern and attention.

But let's put this proposal in its proper perspective. The only student who will benefit is the per-

UB Takes Ike's Lead, Plans Busy Ed. Week

The University took Ike's words to heart this week and started planning what might well be the biggest event on this year's campus calendar. In keeping with the presidential proclamation designating Nov. 10-16 as American Education Week, Pres. James Halsey announced that the University will open its doors during that period for examination by parents, fraternal and civic groups and friends of the University.

DWIGHT D. EISENHOWER

The activities for the week will take place in three phases. The first is a Parents' Day program on Sunday afternoon, Nov. 10, when students' families will be invited to tour campus dorms, administration buildings and have an opportunity to confer with faculty members. The Parents' Day activities will culminate with a tea in the Dining Hall.

During the week various civic groups will attend luncheons at the Gym and tour the campus. Such Bridgeport groups as the Chamber of Commerce, Rotary Club, Lions Club, Kiwanis Club, the Exchange Club and the Civitan Club have been invited to attend activities over a five day period.

The third phase of American Education Week observance on campus will include exhibits, programs, and activities arranged by individual faculty members, departments, clubs and student groups.

In keeping with the spirit of the week's activities, the Scribe will not publish on Thursday, Nov. 7, but will hit campus news stands on Sunday, Nov. 10 with a special "Salute to Parents" supplement.

In announcing the special edition, the Scribe Editorial Board announced that all campus news normally scheduled for the Nov. 7 issue will be included in the Nov. 10 edition.

University officials also announced that no student parking would be allowed in the Tech parking area, between 8 a. m. and 2 p. m., during the Nov. 10-16 period. The action was taken to insure parking space for visiting officials and friends.

Gloria Runs Wild Over AIC; Scores Every Point in Win

by Roger Lefkon

In a sudden reversal of form, UB's Purple Knight gridders racked up their second home victory in as many tries last Friday, by defeating American International College, 13-7.

It was a night that saw a 5-6, 180 pound fullback named Vinny Gloria put on a one man show as he carried into the end zone for both tallies and converted the latter to give UB a well earned victory. It was a night that saw 1500 loyal UBites brave the pouring rain and the elusive flu to watch their heroes cop their first win against the Aces from Springfield, Mass. since the rivalry began four years ago. It was a night that saw Bridgeport snap a two game losing streak and even its season record at 2-2-1. All in all it was quite a night.

There is an old adage about ball players coming back to haunt their ex-coaches. While in the service it was AIC coach Gay Salvucci who transformed UB's George Dixon from an end to a halfback. As history would have it, Salvucci got a good look at his

Wandering Minstrels Have Home for Wayward Verses

Arise singers of verse! Arise spinners of silvery sentences! How long has that well turned rhyme laid deep within the silence of your bleeding heart? How long, oh now very long, have you waited for the crass world to hear your message?

Take thy pens, oh singer, and commit thy every sentiment to paper, if you do this thing before the moon slips up from yon hill on the fifth of November month and send it by post to the hallowed halls of the National Poetry Assoc., 3210 Selby Ave., Los Angeles 34, California, you may win the praise of your fellow man.

These good people have started a competition in which all student minstrels may take part. Each masterpiece must be typed on a separate sheet of paper and bear the name and home address of the sender as well as the University name.

And what do you gain if you are among the winners? Ah! but that is not important. No, all the singer of songs needs is a place in which to sing, a tree, a jug of wine and a book of verse and money.

The work may be on any subject. Art, true art, accepts no taboos. There is one limitation however, it must be short, that is, it seems they have short pages.

Rassias Dubbed Fellowship Head

President James H. Halsey has named Dr. John A. Rassias as the Liaison Officer to nominate to the Danforth Foundation two or not to exceed three candidates for the 1958 fellowships. These appointments are fundamentally "a relationship of encouragement" throughout the years of graduate study, carrying a promise of financial aid within prescribed conditions as there may be need. The maximum annual grant for single Fellows is $1400 plus tuition and fees charged to all graduate students; for married Fellows, $2400 plus tuition and fees charged to all graduate students with an additional stipend of $350 for children. Students with or without financial need are invited to apply.

"See where the same coterie of students were selected for Who's Who. How come so few students were selected for Who's Who this year? Why wasn't Ron San chosen? Don't you think he should have been a candidate?"

Caprio

These and similar comments were made after last year's final selections were made for the annual publication of Who's Who Among Students in American Universities and Colleges. Perhaps the gripes were legitimate or foundless; however, it is not for us to decide. This year, with these gripes held in mind, the Student Council committee for the publication changed the manner of nominations. Vin Falcone, chairman of the Who's Who committee, gave forms to various organizations on campus so that they could nominate students within their organizations. This way the possibility of overlooking eligible students would be lessened to a great extent. Also, there would be little reason for certain elements to complain concerning the by-passing of an eligible student. If the student's own organization did not deem he or she worthy of the honor, then there is little cause for vexation.

So what happened—Falcone to date has received less than a dozen names. Whose fault is it? The person or persons with a reasonable candidate who have not made use of the forms. (The forms may be secured from the Student Activities office). These same individuals will moan and groan later in the year, when the book is published, about the small number, the same clique, and the over-looking of Ron San. Well, this year it will be the fault of their own negligence and not the Who's Who committee.

SPA should be congratulated for having a help week rather than a hell week for their pledges. They are the fellows collecting contributions to the United Fund. In the same line, a sizable donation was pledged to the Cerebral Palsy telethon by UB's Theta Sigma fraternity. The mademoiselles of our Fashion Merchandising Dept. will present one of their bi-annual fashion shows on Oct. 29. They will have three showings for the convenience of everyone, at 1 p. m., 2 p. m. and 8 p. m. You really can't afford to miss purchasing these quality fashions at wholesale prices.

FLASH!!! Several men's groups on campus will attempt to curtail dating until the flu epidemic passes. The reason being that asiatic flu emanates from abroad! ! ! ?

The reason for the glow in Al Jones' life is the result of the acceptance of his Theta Sigma pin by a very lovely miss answering to the name of Ronnie Trezza. Al is a senior in the College of Business Administration, and Ronnie is a nursing student.

Due to a mix-up of some sort, Chi Zeta Rho and Pi Omicron Upsilon were both scheduled to hold their respective rush teas in Alumni Hall last Sunday. After a confab, CZR displayed a measure of true sisterhood and relinquished their right to Alumni. Nice going, girls.

We hear from various sources that the lads of ADO have been living it up of late. They have had "blasts?" for the last three weekends. Don't neglect your studies, boys. Oh, is he kidding?

Finally, after several years of roaming, Marty Schwartz of SLX gave his pin away. The recipient is petite Brenda Krandell.

Nugge and "Bo" would like to discover the method that John Aslan has for making 1 plus 1 equal 4. If it's worthwhile they have promised to relay it to all of us.

BG pledgemasters Crit Herr and Nancy Hurowitz had their pledges attired in the traditional Beta Gamma garb to a buffet supper last Sunday. The new derby toting ladies are Joan Tassinaro, Jean Taylor, Norma Faas, Barb Kalinski, Pauline Ellis and Loretta Witowski.

Theta Sigma fraternity will have an innovation at their annual "Football", Friday, Oct. 25. Your ticket to the dance will entitle you to a free chance on the radio that is to be given away as the doorprize. The winner will have the choice of either a clock radio or one with dual speakers. Also, as part of the Theta Sigma weekend will be the Halloween on Saturday night and a cocktail party Sunday afternoon.

Fashion Merchandising was Linda Bickoff's major. Now that she has received the karat of two given to her by Bob Schaefer, she is currently majoring in "Wanta see my ring?" Bob is a transfer from Marietta who had little trouble in finding Cooper Hall. SO LONG D.E.T.

OF RIGHTS AND REASON

son who has proved himself capable of doing the work at a high degree of efficiency. And then the only thing he gains is a few hours sleep on the morning when he would have been scheduled to take the exam. True a graduating senior might be flunking another course and with this release from one final might be able to use the time preparing for the weaker subject. But let's face it ladies and gentlemen, if he is flunking before the final, the three extra hours study aren't going to do him much good.

Now the Scholastics Standing Committee has stated that the reasons projected by the Council representatives were "scholastically unsound" in that "a reward for good work" is not enough to warrant passing the proposal on to the Senate with a clean bill of health.

Well if it is reasons you want, we can think up a thousand. We could say that the extra time saved in not taking a final was going to be used to build a better Sputnik or to read Tom Swift and His Electric Grandmother.

However we could look at the opposite sides of these angelic pursuits and view the extra time as an area for diabolical endeavors such as spiking the jello in the Dining Hall or writing bawdy songs.

What we are trying to prove is that any "reason" has a positive and a negative side. Therefore the Council showed good judgement in presenting the proposal in a sterile legal form. By tacking on "reasons" they left themselves open to wildwind debate on the senate floor. In short the proposal should stand or fall as a straight forward request that will give a small percentage of the graduating class a little more time to do whatever they please with it.

It is also possible that when the proposal finally reaches the Senate floor it will be amended to read "graduate excused at the instructor's discretion." This will have gained the student nothing. We fully realize that college professors as a whole view over-all rules as an invasion of their academic rights. However, we point out that we live in an age of federalization where the student is low man on the academic totem pole. If you do have to give up one of your rights, it hasn't been crushed out of sight. You have simply transferred it to the student.

But if you feel that the proposal is untenable without a rider that would render it useless to the student then by all means the Scribe demands that you vote it down. The one major thing we have learned in college is that there is very little idealism outside these ivy walls. We would like to think, ten years from now that somewhere in this mad world, whether we took a final or not, there are people who are upholding right, not reason.

Joke Hunt On

There's a humor hunt going on around campus.

The University is looking for humorous anecdotes that have occurred in the lives of faculty members, students and administration workers. The stories will be read at the All University Dinner on Nov. 8, with prizes going to the submitter of the best stories.

Anecdotes should be no more than 100 words telling of an experience that has happened on campus or concerns a University personality.

Contributions should be submitted to Dr. Norman Rich at Bishop Hall as soon as possible.

Administration Clarifies Asian Flu Absence Queries

With 20 per cent of the student body kayoed by the grippe, flu or what-have-you, the current question on campus seems to be, "so what about my absences."

In an effort to clarify the situation, Dr. Alfred Wolff, director of student personnel, stated today that any student is not debarred from classes provided he has a card from his dorm counsellor or the University nurse certifying his absence on medical grounds.

Wolff injected however, that a student who is absent for an extended period of two or three weeks will be asked to withdraw for academic purposes.

Wolff also pointed out that excused cuts do not necessarily mean that a student has remaining "extra cuts" as this decision rests directly with the course instructor.

A check with the University Infirmary on Monday showed that flu cases were down over the weekend but students began straggling in as the week began.

Flu shots have been administered to students and faculty over the last two weeks at the cost of one dollar.

At one point during the week civil officials were considering closing down the elementary and secondary schools in the area due to heavy absences. The University however, announced classes would be held as scheduled.

Two Time Losers Try For First Soccer Win

The University soccer team will be seeking its first win of the campaign when they play host to Lowell Textile on Thursday, at Seaside Park at 3:00p.m. The game was originally scheduled for Oct. 25 but was changed to Oct. 24. UB played two games this season. They dropped a double overtime thriller to Hofstra College, 3-2, in their season's opener and lost to the University of Connecticut last week by the score of 6-0.

Scheduled games against Fairfield Dickinson college and Springfield have been canceled due to rain and illness, respectively.

SPORTSTALK

by Roger Lefkon

With the football season more than half gone, I thought it might be an opportune time to pay a visit to Bridgeport's Director of Athletics and Head Coach of Basketball, Dr. Herbert E. Glines. Glines, who is, starting his eleventh season as head basketball coach at the University, was in an exceptionally receptive mood as we sat and talked about basketball in general.

Coach, I asked, in your 11 years of coaching what do you consider your greatest thrill?

From the smile on his face it was obvious that I had touched upon one of his favorite topics of conversation, the 1951-52 team that compiled a 21-7 mark.

"That was quite a year," Glines went on, "We had Seaman, LaBash and Saccone. That was the year we were selected to go to the NAIA regionals at Colby. I'll never forget the 500 fans who were down at the station to see us off, yes sir, that was quite a team, best team ever. But strange as it may seem that wasn't my greatest thrill nor was going to Kansas City for the NAIA regionals two years later."

"Well then what was?" I asked.

"Overall, my greatest thrill was the way our team played last season. That team gave me more for what we had than any other team I've coached. That was a team that won on spirit. And although we had a losing season, I was more pleased with last year's team than any in previous years. Glines went on, you can't get a team keyed up for every game on the schedule. I set my sights for Fairfield University, who we are 8-10 with over the years. Last year we beat them twice, and when we beat Fairfield twice I feel as though I've accomplished something."

What Glines says can be borne out by the standing room only crowds that were in attendance for both of those games. I thought that this might be a good time to get an insight as to how a coach's mind runs, and so I asked Glines to explain his philosophy on coaching.

"It's simple," he said, "sincerity and interest. You have to show an interest, that's basic to being a good coach. Sincerity is 90% of the battle, you must have the players' respect, you as an individual." That pretty much sums it up.

"What can we look forward to this year, coach?"

"Well," he said, "we lost Harry Peters, our All-New England guard, as well as leading scorer in the Tri-State League, and he was 'one of the best', we'll miss him. But, we have returning starters, Hal Hellerman, second in scoring last season with a 13 point average, Charlie Jessup, an outstanding ball player, and the much improved George Dieter.

"Add to this sophomores, Bob Laemel, who wound up with a record 342 points last year, Tony Granger, runner-up in scoring with 264 points and 6-3 Ed Wysocki, top rebounder on last year's Frosh squad, shake well, and you have a pretty fair group of ball players out there."

I agreed with Glines that this list looked very impressive. Almost as impressive as the schedule of top teams we will be playing this year. Brandeis, in the season opener Dec. 2, at home, St. Johns, Iona, St. Francis and Manhattan to mention a few.

Glines is a resourceful individual who knows his craft like a farmer knows his seeding schedule. He's also got a tough schedule. Only time will tell which one will win out.

Frosh Topple Aggies in First Tilt

The Bridgeport Freshman completely outclassed and out fought the Long Island Aggies in winning the opening game of their schedule 12-7 on the friendly grounds of Seaside Park.

From the opening kick-off, it was the Bridgeport Frosh all the way. Although unable to score in the first quarter, the young knights were never out of the Aggies backyard. Late in the second period the frosh finally hit pay dirt. Quarterback John Sullivan hit right halfback Tom Bassano with a pass on the Aggies twenty yard line, and the speedy back raced the rest of the way to pay dirt. The play covered a distance of fifty-five yards. Blair Marelli tried the extra point, but the attempt was wide.

In the third period, the UB team went all the way again when Bassano took a hand off from Sullivan, and raced off tackle for forty-five yards and the second frosh touchdown. The P.A.T. was again wide.

The Aggies scored late in the fourth period and the extra point was good. The game ended with the knights holding the ball on the Agies six yard line.

The Bridgeport backs picked up 215 yards on the ground with Bassano picking up 138 yards. Fullback Tom Shea and tight end back Emmanuel Scata did an excellent job in the backfield.

The line play of the young knights held the Aggies to 103 yards on the ground, and the great defensive work of right guard Dennis Mackin was one of the main reasons for this.

Next Saturday the yearlings play Dean Junior College at Dean.

Cancer Soc. Gives Grant To Nurses

The Connecticut division of the American Cancer Society has donated $5,000 to the College of Nursing to further the establishment of a program in public health nursing and expansion of the College of Nursing.

To be known as the American Cancer Society Memorial Grant the gift will honor the memory of Mrs. Anna Pflom of Bridgeport. Announcement of the grant was made by Mrs. Fanita Malone, executive director of the Bridgeport branch of the American Cancer Society.

"The American Cancer Society has a great interest in the nursing care of patients and consequently in the education of qualified personnel in the field of nursing," Mrs. Malone said.

The central geographical location and the University's present standing, together with recommendations by the Bridgeport Cancer Society's nursing service committee and the state nursing advisory and medical advisory committees were factors in the organization's decision to support the College of Nursing in amounts of $1,000 over the next five years. It is the first time that the Connecticut division of the American Cancer Society has supported a grant beyond a one-year period.

Funds for the grant are to be derived from the bequest of the late Mrs. Anna Pflom, who operated the Charles Pflom Florist shop with her husband at Barnum and Central avenues for a number of years.

5 The Scribe — Thursday, Oct. 24, 1957

Dear Editor:

The Faculty Senate Executive Committee, acting on behalf of the Faculty Senate, wishes to correct the inaccurate article which appeared in the last Scribe issue reporting on a Faculty Senate action which has not yet taken place. The Faculty Senate is due to discuss the final exams proposal at its next meeting, November 6, when Student Council members will be invited to be present.

In keeping with Faculty Senate procedure, the Student Council proposal was referred to the Scholastic Standards Committee last April for a report in May. Since student representatives had not been present at the committee meeting, the Faculty Senate postponed discussion until its next meeting in October. A committee meeting was called in May, but a note from the Student Council indicated that student members could not be present. At the October Faculty Senate meeting, therefore, the Chairman of the Scholastic Standards Committee suggested another postponement to give students an opportunity to meet with them.

A report of the Scholastic Standards meeting was probably the one reported in last week's Scribe. Reference to an alternate plan does not seem necessary since the Faculty Senate has not had an opportunity to discuss and take action on the original proposal.

We hope this statement will help to clarify the situation, and we strongly recommend that in the future the Scribe will verify all information before publishing it.

Dear Editor:

First, the senate has not acted on the proposal nor will it act without Student Council members being invited to the meeting. Second, the proposal, as written, was voted "inadequate" by the Scholastic Standards Committee mainly because it was too vague and no worthwhile reasons were presented by the student representatives attending this meeting for passing such a proposal. Unfortunately they were not too familiar with the proposal and had little opportunity to formulate good reasons for its passage.

The best reason they could give was mainly the idea that seniors should be given a reward for good behavior. This is academically unsound. Above all, it was the Scholastic Standards Committee who offered to assist these students and the council in re-writing an acceptable proposal which might have better opportunity to pass the senate.

You quote the council president as being "stymied" as to what was unacceptable. Why should he be? He was invited to the meeting and even if he could not attend, he could have talked with any of the committee and gotten the facts before he allowed himself to be quoted. The argument supporting the proposal as quoted in the Scribe "that seniors could spend time studying for courses in which they didn't have a B" is the best argument yet. Why didn't Mr. Caprio, or the representatives, bring that to the committee meeting?

I am a senator, a member of the Scholastic Standards Committee, and a member of the CBA faculty. All my efforts have been in the direction of support of the idea because I believe it has merit. Mine was the only acceptable vote in the committee meeting because I think we can work out a satisfactory proposal.

On the basis of your front page article, placing all the blame on the faculty, and knowing how this has been received by the faculty, I think you have seriously damaged the council's hopes of ever getting the proposal passed. I certainly feel that my present reaction would now all be in the opposite direction.

Yours for better reporting, and a better University paper.

Dear Editor:

We, the students of Northeastern University, who attended the football games between our teams, wish to express our appreciation for the hospitality shown us by your student body, especially by Stamford Hall.

Even though the game was a total loss, as far as we were concerned, our burden of disappointment was lightened by the consideration of your students.

Again may we say thank you, and "wait till next year."

Sincerely,

RAGS TO RICHES

Fame and wealth, if you consider five dollars and a hearty applause nothing to be sneezed at, came to Vincent Battles, a junior majoring in history when he walked off with first prize in the Alumni Hall Talent Show last Sunday.

Sponsored by the Alumni Hall Board of Governors, the show saw Battles captivate the audience with a rendition of "I Cover the Waterfront."

If you answered "No" to all questions, you obviously smoke Camels—a real cigarette. Only 6 or 7 "No" answers mean you better get onto Camels fast. Fewer than 6 "No's" and it really doesn't matter what you smoke. Anything's good enough!

But if you want a real smoke, make it Camels. Only Camel's exclusive blend of costly tobaccos tastes so rich, smokes so good and mild. No wonder more people today smoke Camels than any other cigarette. How about you?

GLORIA RUNS WILD

ex-army star as Dixon sprinted around end for 29 yards in the second quarter to set up Bridgeport's first TD. Seconds later fullback Gloria plowed into the end zone to draw first blood for the Knights. The half ended with Bridgeport holding a 6-0 lead.

At the conclusion of the third quarter of play the gridiron looked more like a gigantic mud puddle than a field of play. The mud didn't seem to bother the Knights however, as they drove 48 yards in 11 plays to assure themselves the necessary margin for victory midway through the fourth quarter.

The final UB tally was made possible by Gary Engler's interception and return to the AIC 40 yard line. From this point it was Gloria's show as he snagged a Donahue forward pass for 11 yards and then climaxed the drive by going off tackle for the remaining yardage. Gloria added the point after touchdown to give UB a 13-0 lead. AIC registered its only touchdown of the evening in the final minutes of play.

Statistically speaking, UB outrushed the Aces 209 to 103 yards respectively. Outstanding line performances were turned in by center Lenny Ledet, filling in for flustered Bill Barstow and Dave Quagliozzi, UB guard. Just as a point of information: the AIC line averaged 205 pounds, that's a lot of pounds to stop, but the Knights were up for this one and clearly outplayed the bigger AIC forward wall.

The Knights will seek to maintain their undefeated status at home this season when they tangle with Upsala College of East Orange, N. J. next Friday night.

Upsala leads the Knights over the years with a 4-2 record and Bridgeport will be out to gain revenge for last year's 13-0 drubbing at the hands of the Vikings.

Upsala has fared considerably better against these mutual opponents, defeating AIC last week and playing to a tie with Norwich in the season opener for both schools.

Game time will be 7:45 p. m. at Hedges Memorial Stadium.

Newman Club Forms Bowling League

The Newman Club started the social ball rolling this year in more ways than one. Over 88 members, under the direction of Lou Bruno, have started a bowling league with 14 teams competing for top honors.

The games are scheduled to be played on Sunday evenings following a buffet supper at the Newman Hall. The first contest will find the keggers invading the Park City Alleys to take complete control of every available lane.

The buffet suppers held at Newman Hall are open to all university students and faculty members.

APO 'Dogs' Turn Hell Week Into UF Help Week

Sigma Phi Alpha fraternity on the University's campus has discarded its traditional "Hell Week" for pledges in favor of "Help Week" with assistance being given to the United Fund.

Pledges of SPA are seeking donations from fellow students for the United Fund effort.

A booth has been set up in the Alumni Hall Student Center building and pledges are also approaching their classmates on the campus area.

Fraternity president, Raymond E. DeCava said that SigmaPhi Alpha fraternity wanted to help the county's charities as well as to promote the goodwill of the University in the most constructive manner the fraternal group could undertake.
